The British embassy acknowledged today the message from General Larranza reported to have been sent yesterday from Chihuahua to the British ambassador, assuring him that the constitutionalists would do everything in their power to protect the oil interests at Tampico. General Larranza's message gave further assurance that his forces would protect foreigners in the Tampico field.

Reports were received by railroad men that a farmer named Richards, who was struck and killed by a train at the crossing between Mineral Point and Janesville on the Chicago and North Western, was on the St. Paul railroad en route to Mineral Point, sometime yesterday afternoon. No official reports were received here but it is stated the man was walking the tracks and run down by the locomotive named "The Great Northern" at Janesville. The man was conductor on the train. The crew will not return to Janesville this evening.

A bunch of American Beauty roses, which were given him in the house from which he was departing, are held by the police to have identified the immigration agent to his slayer. He was killed in the alley with the flowers under his arm. Six shots rang in rapid succession. The first three rattled through the electric light at the corner. The last four passed through the region of his heart within a few minutes of each other. To make death sure the assailant thrust a dagger into the already dead man's heart.

This picture, which has just come out of the Colorado mine strike district, gives an idea of how the mine guards fought the striking miners and their families. The guard has concealed himself behind a pile of wreckage which has been caused by the arrival of the militia the mine guards had an uneven fight with the strikers and many of the guards were killed.

RECOMMENDS SILAGE

GIVES GOOD EXAMPLES

Corn a Good Crop For Soiling Purposes—Writer Urges Corn Contest.

The careful farmer making plans for his crops for the coming season should not, unless he has a good supply of silage, fail to make provision for some silage crop if he has dairy cows, and what Rock county farmer has not?

There are very few seasons when the pastures do not suffer more or less from the drought, and unless this pasture is supplemented by some succulent feed there is shrinkage in milk supply, which seriously affects the income received from the cows, because there is not only a loss of milk during the drought but the weight of the milk has been reduced it is almost impossible to again secure normal amount during the lactation period. Should the flow be reducing the early part of the lactation it will be readily seen that the loss will be great.

The experience of two Rock county farmers is to the point here, as related by one of them to the writer, who visited his farm last January.
On the two farms there were about the same number of cows, and they freshened about the same time. In the early summer comparison of the weight of milk each morning at the factory showed about the same amount. But when the dry weather came on farmer A's cows began to shrink, but farmer B's cows were fed green feed and the milk flow kept up.
In midwinter when the writer made his visit to farmer B his cows were giving twice as much as farmer A's.
Farmer A consequently suffered a serious loss of income extending over several months, due to the failure to provide a succulent feed for summer drought, as silage, but lacking that a soiling crop should by all means be provided.

There are a number of different crops used for soiling purposes, but of these the writer considers that corn is the most satisfactory of all for Rock county farmers. Experiments at Madison show that when fed corn cows did much better than when fed oats, peas or clover, or other soiling crops. It is a good plan to get corn in early for soiling purposes and plant it in such a way that there will be a succession, planting for four times during the summer. Those times may or may not be times when it will be needed to supplement the pasture.

If one has alfalfa that may be used in place of corn and will be found most valuable, but the time of cutting is somewhat limited with it, for alfalfa is not cut at the proper time the subsequent crop is injured.
It may be cut for soiling for about a week each time of cutting for hay, which will be cut four times during the summer. Those times may or may not be times when it will be needed to supplement the pasture.

The acre for the corn contest.
A number of boys have expressed their determination to go into the corn growing contest, but still there is room. Remember boys that ten prizes are offered, also that the greatest value to be gotten out of this contest is not the prize, but the experience and information and inspiration each boy will gain from his work and the promised visit to Madison. And all boys stand on an equal footing there, according to what each puts into the contest.

You will want all the information you can get on the subject and you will be interested in learning about how other contests are conducted, so the writer suggests you send for the following bulletins:
Boys' Corn Growing Contest, Agricultural Experiment Station, Ames, Iowa.
Acre Yield Corn Contest, Dept. of Agriculture, University Farm, St. Paul, Minnesota.
Farmers' Bulletin No. 537, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This one is entitled "How to Grow an Acre of Corn," and is especially timely. Just now when you are selecting your acre, you will do well to take the advice on how to choose the acre for the contest given below, which is quoted from the above bulletin:
"It is better to have the seed acre adjacent to or a part of a larger field of the same variety of corn. An isolated acre of corn is likely to meet with injury from live stock, weeds, chinch bugs, or grasshoppers at some time during the season.
The soil should be fertile and loose to great depth. A good corn crop can not be produced on hard, depleted soil. The acre should be uniform, so that all parts will be in proper condition for cultivation at the same time.
A highly profitable corn crop depends entirely upon the selection of a fertile,
well drained location.
The nature of the season cannot be foretold; therefore it is impossible to predict whether high land or low land will produce better, but as corn makes a tall, thrifty growth, requiring much moisture, low land usually being better supplied with moisture and fertility is likely, if well drained, to produce better than high land.
"Choose land that usually produces heavy crops, and, if possible, land that has recently produced vigorous crops of clover, cowpeas, alfalfa, vetch, or some other legume. A heavy growth of large, vigorous horseweeds, cocklebur, or other rank growing weeds indicate a good corn soil.
"Alfalfa, clover, and similar plants send their roots to great depths and are the best crops to turn under for the purpose of growing a very large corn crop. Their culture is the best and most economical way of subsoiling land. The deep growing roots loosen the subsoil and keep it porous long after the crop is turned under. Without sufficient rainfall, the corn crops are obtained on alfalfa sod, the soil moisture having been exhausted to a great depth by the roots of the alfalfa.
"Outer rows of corn are usually broken down in cultivating and are usually injured more by chinch bugs or grasshoppers from adjacent fields or by hot winds. Therefore, more than an acre should be planted, so that at least four guard rows of corn may surround the test acre."

April 24 have timely articles on Young People's Contests also.

BIRDS COMPOSERS OF
MUSIC OF THE WORLD

Mrs. Jessie Braman Daggett Has Interesting Story to Tell of Feathered Songsters.

What is bird music to you—"A noise in the world" or a song? Are you one of those folks who sing there is music everywhere, but are unable to point out the music?
Does the early morning twittering of the birds make you want to sing because another day has been born, or do you bury your head in the pillow and growl because your morning nature has been disturbed? In other words, are you one of those sensitive souls who want old "Cock-a-Doode-Do's" vocal chords cut or do you welcome his cheery song?

Mrs. Jessie Braman Daggett is one of those who has discovered music everywhere and particularly in the notes of the song birds. She has found the music of everything from the American rag to Wagnerian opera and Debussy's fractional notes.
When she gets through whistling the bird songs to you, to her own accompaniment on the piano, you can wander out into the wooded lots, or even in your own yard, and from the trees will come such a chorus as you never heard before.

This lady lives at La Grange, Illinois. She is a bird lover, a bird enthusiast, and the ladies having charge of the work of the Junior Civic League have arranged for her coming to Jamesville on Saturday, May 9th, to give a musical bird talk at the Congregational church at two-thirty in the afternoon. It is going to be a treat for bird lovers. It is going to be a revelation to musicists.
Mrs. Daggett has a message to tell and she tells it.

Just imagine an opera composed by birds. Well, Mrs. Daggett believes that the great composers have really all cribbed ideas from the songsters and she shows why and how they did it. They did not know it, but after she has told her story
you will understand it.

Very Different Matter.

TALKS ON THRIFT
No. 7—A STRAIN ON CAPITAL

"No one is economically useful unless he saves a portion of his income for the benefit of industry."—Laurence M. Symmes.

It is rather an interesting commentary on things as they are that in New York City personal income taxes aggregating $30,000,000 were being reported while at the same time there were heard the mutterings of an army of unemployed said to number upwards of 300,000 men.

New York is the head and center of extravagance in this country. All other cities follow its lead and the smaller communities imitate the larger centers as far as they can. As it is all over the United States so it is all over the civilized world—a great strain is being put upon capital by a widespread extravagance which is behind all local causes advanced to explain conditions resulting in the unemployment of thousands.

As a prominent economist says: "Without war and calamity the world's capital might have withstood the other extravagances of the day. On the other hand, without personal extravagance, the cost of unavoidable misfortune might have passed unnoticed. Both have occurred, however, and the question arises—is it not just possible that the strain has been greater than capital could bear? Is it not reasonable to assume that prosperity cannot return in full measure until the damage is repaired? May we not expect enterprise to wait until the effect of conservation of all kinds begins to be felt?"

The manager of a large cafe in New York city is reported to have estimated that New York on New Year's Eve spends $2,500,000 in suppers, theatres, cabs, saloons, tips to waiters, etc. One-fifth of that sum would build many an industry. Suppose 200,000 individuals who have spent in any of the larger cities $500 annually in tips, cabs, theatre ticket commissions, etc., should deposit that money in the banks and thus turn it into legitimate enterprises there would be $100,000,000 to help make prosperity and keep it.

While it is true that women, as a rule, are more inclined to be thrifty than men, yet it can be said, without lack of gallantry to the fair sex, that many women are almost totally lacking in the thrift instinct.

In some cases the wife is the out-and-out extravagant member of the matrimonial partnership.
To any suggestion from the mere man who supports the household regarding the wisdom of building up a reserve fund in a savings bank account, she never listens patiently.

Possibly her retort on such occasions is:
"Make more money and then perhaps we can save some."
That is splendid advice, to be sure, but suppose the good husband has about reached the limit of his earning capacity? Suppose he or some other member of the family should have an expensive illness? Do not these possibilities show the folly of putting off ALL saving until the earnings increase, if they never do increase?

Observation and experience alike point unerringly to the conclusion that the DESIRE and WILLINGNESS to save something must precede the actual accomplishment of that purpose, be the annual income $500 or $5,000 and that the experience of the person who puts off saving is likely to be that of the procrastinating sinner to whom are addressed the words of the old hymn:

"If you tarry till you're better,
You will never come at all."
And besides what a resource is money in the bank? How interest adds to income! And how much better and more effectively a man works when his mind is freed from worry over the present and anxiety for the future!
Money saved and put away safely in the bank is a worry-killer and a gloom-dispeller, while common sense thrift, in the long run, brings greater happiness than extravagance ever can.

JUNIOR NINE TRIM THE SENIOR SQUAD

First Game Was Interesting.—Sophes Defeated Freshies in Closing Tilt at Driving Park.

There being no session at the high school yesterday afternoon, the four classes unheated all of the good diamond material they had, and created quite an interesting afternoon at the Park Association grounds, when the junior nine trimmed the seniors in a close and interesting contest, 9 to 4, followed by the victory of the sophes over the freshies.

The first game drew the most attention as shown by the fact that the crowd turned for their homes as soon as the contest ended. There was no feature playing. The lineups for the first game follows:

Sport Snap Shots

Christy Mathewson has one large overpowering ambition. He wants to equal or exceed the record of Cy Young and win 500 games or more before he brings his baseball career to a close. He is now entering his fourteenth year in the big show and to date he has won 238 games. Cy Young's exact number of victories in the major leagues was 503. Matty has realized most of the ambitious of his early youth. He has achieved a fame and popularity that the scarcely dared dream of at first. He isn't quite sure that his present ambition will be as easy to reach, however. "It would mean, if I averaged twenty victories a season, that I would have to hang around in fast circles for nine more years. I guess Cy Young's record is safe as far as I am concerned. He was the real marvel of baseball in every way. Matty's chances of reaching the five hundred mark seem rather slim since he has already been in the game for quite a while, but the manner in which he has been hanging on make the oldest settlers declare that he's likely to be with the Giants for fourteen seasons more.

They have a young featherweight fighter in Baltimore who in the matter of knock-outs has made a record that will not be approached for many a day. George Chaney has set a k. o. clip that will not be within the reach of his adversaries for yet a while. Abe Attell in fourteen years of fighting put over something like forty-nine knock-outs. Patsy Kline has scored twenty-four of them in seven years. Johnny Kilbane, the present champ, has scored twelve thus far in his career, but Chaney has all of those well faded. He has been fighting but four years and in that length of time has laid thirty-two of his opponents quivering on the mat. He has fought some of the best men in his class, among them being Young

He has confidently expected to sell his young phenom to one of the major league clubs before the 1914 season

Britt, Phil McGovern, Eddie Sherman, Eddie O'Keefe, Ty Cobb, K. O. Eggers and Jimmy Toland.

Willie Ritchie, like Johnny Kilbane, is thought to have improved a great deal since he won his title. Too often it is thought that just because a man is the champ he is the best there is and can't learn any more about the game. Ritchie, and Kilbane show pretty well that this is not always the case.

Are the Feds at a loss for the whereabouts of the likely to run out of change? Listen to what Joe Tinker says. "The Feds are stronger than safety deposit vaults. Take my boss, Charley Weeghman, for example. He owns a large string of restaurants in Chicago and since he has stated in the baseball business his restaurants have shown an increase of over $300 a day. Is he going to feel sore at baseball for that reason? You couldn't drag him away from the Feds with seven hundred great, strong horses."

GOOD SCORES ARE MADE AT GUN CLUB'S PRACTICE SHOOT HELD ON FRIDAY

W. E. Lawyer and E. G. Jones of Milton were tied for high gun honors at the weekly practice shoot of the Janesville Gun Club held yesterday afternoon at their grounds on North Washington street, both breaking forty-six of a possible fifty. An increased number of members are enjoying the sport each week. The scores were as follows:

SIXTH GRADE TEAM TRIM FIFTH GRADE OF ADAMS SCHOOL

The Sixth Grade of the Adams school conquered the Fifth Grade team yesterday afternoon at the fair grounds 22 to 19. Tunstead was on the firing line for the Sixth Graders, and with the fielding and hitting of his teammates won the game. Wall twirled for the losers and pitched a creditable game, but failure to bunch the hits lost the contest.

The lineups were as follows: Sixth Grade—Howard, c.; Tunstead, p.; Ford, ss.; Black, lb.; Hawthorn, 2b.; Thompson, 3b.; Gardner, Robinson and Barrege, fielders.

Fifth Grade—Green, c.; Wall, p.; Plogart, ss.; Anderson, lb.; Tall, 2b.; Austin, 3b.; Kokusky, Brownell and Pierce, fielders.

HE'S STORM PETREL OF BASEBALL WAR

George Stovall.

James Gilmore, Charlie Weeghman, the Wards and other owners in the Federal league may be prominent, but the real stormy petrel of the baseball war is George Stovall, manager of the Kansas City Fed club.

The national commission intends to concentrate its attack on Stovall, who has been the most active of the Feds in grabbing players under contract with the major clubs.

PITCHERS MAKE ST. LOUIS LOOK STRONG

In the Browns this year Branch Rickey has a stronger balanced club than it has been St. Louis' luck to possess for several seasons. The Browns are particularly strong in the pitching department, Rickey having seven good pitchers. They are: George Baumgardner, Roy Mitchell, Walter Leverenz, Earl Hamilton, Carl Weiman, Willie Taylor and James.

WHITE SOX TO MEET BLACK HAWK GIANTS IN THE FIRST GAME

Sunday afternoon the White Sox will clash with the noted Black Hawk Giants in the first game of the season, the nine having reorganized for the coming summer. The Sox have had three successful seasons on the diamond, having an enviable record, and this year will graduate into faster company and attempt to keep their slate clean.

McCue and the Giants are out to crush the hopes of the Sox, a younger aggregation, while in the bud, but Stewart, Stuckney and Bleasdale claim that they have survived worse stocks in former years, and tomorrow's game will go to picking the Sox nine for the season's schedule.

Ancient Custom Kept Up.

To determine the letting of a piece of meadow land, a quaint device was resorted to at Butterworth, near Boston, England. A candle was lighted and a pin stuck in its side. Then bidding commenced. The candle burned until the flame reached the pin, which fell out, and the land was declared let to the last bidder prior to the pin falling. There are people still living who remember when the sandglass was used at auctions in Lincolnshire, and the candle and pin is a revival of an ancient custom.

"EVINRUDE"

Where are you going to spend this Summer?

Before making plans for your Summer vacation come into our store and let us show you the

This motor weighs only about 50 pounds and may be carried about anywhere just like a satchel. It attaches to any rowboat in less than one minute without any change in the construction of the boat. It may also be attached to canoes, duck boats, and all kinds of odd shaped craft. We have one on exhibition right here at the store and will be glad to show it and tell you all about it; thousands of them in use.

Every "Evinrude" is positively guaranteed. The motor is so simple that women and children can operate it. You may take long trips on any lake or river if you own an "Evinrude". You don't need to own a rowboat because the "Evinrude" makes a motor-boat of any rowboat in less than one minute. Speed with a rowboat 8 miles an hour.

Big George is a Great Big Cigar That Sells For 5c

The "Big George" 5c cigar is MORE than extra good value—it is the most SATISFYING nickel smoke ever offered across the counter. Strong statement, you say, but the Trial, friend, will convince. Five cents is a small item, admittedly, but it will buy MUCH satisfaction. If you smoke the "Big George"—tomorrow.

"Big George" 5c—Big Value—is made with full leaf Spanish filler, genuine Connecticut Broad Leaf wrapper. "George" is my own origination, worked out from 15 years experience in the cigar business. If "Big George" looks dark to you do not be afraid to try it because it is a mild, lightful smoke.

MISSING YOUNG MAN MAY BE ONE KILLED

Inquiry Received From Hilbert, Wisconsin, Regarding Youth Who Met Death Near Evansville.

Inquiry has been made to the Gazette by Alex O'Donnell of Hilbert, Calumet county, in regard to the identity of the young man who was killed in a week ago near Evansville. The death evidently resulted from a fall from a fast moving freight train. According to the letter received it is suspected that the dead man may be the son of Hilbert, who was missing for two weeks or more. The information states that the missing youth was about 18 years of age, weighed 120 pounds, was 5 feet 8 inches tall and of dark complexion. The name was not given. The Gazette has sent a clipping of the description given of the body in last Saturday's issue to the inquirer, and it is possible that it may lead to a identification, in which case the body will probably be exhumed.

ONE TWO THREE YOU CAN DANCE LIKE ME

Busy Days Preparing for the Opera, "The Heiress," Which Makes Its Bow May 14th and 15th.

"One, two, three." That is the tune one hears at Eagles' Hall almost every afternoon and evening while Miss Besse Wright is teaching her chorus and principals for the opera "The Heiress," which is to be given under the auspices of the Eagles May 14th and 15th at the Myers Theatre. Miss Wright is a very capable and enthusiastic over her work and delighted with some of the "finds" she has discovered of latent talent among the Janesville young people.

She has a chorus of six children, and Wright, as she pauses between teaching the tango steps to a backward couple of the chorus of twenty-four older people, says: "Why, I never saw in little Lucile Craft and Donald Flaherty. They are too cute; you should see them. Then away she starts a straight cut, another couple to make a suggestion to one of the principals that is practicing a scene, and then before the class she turns as the piano plays. One, two, three, you can dance like me, and so it goes. Bertha Saxby, Mabel Levine, Arline Thiele and Miss Gower are some of the young ladies singing parts; while Roy Mason, William McDonald, Arthur Walsh, George Heister and Roy Worthington are cast for heroes and villains on the male cast. It is going to be a big production and the members of the chorus and those taking principal parts are the most enthusiastic over the prospects.

TWO ESCAPE INJURY IN AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR FAIR GROUNDS

B. T. Winslow and G. R. Moore Sustained Slight Injuries When Delivery Machine Turns Turtle.

Losing control of a delivery automobile of the Fairview Floral shop, while speeding thirty miles per hour on Milwaukee avenue, near the Fair Grounds, B. T. Winslow and G. R. Moore, narrowly escaped serious injury when the machine skidded into the ditch and turned turtle about ten o'clock this morning.

Winslow was driving the auto toward the city on Milwaukee avenue and declared that after making a slight turn in the road, the steering wheel jerked loose and instantly the machine jumped into the ditch and ran onto the embankment where it turned over. The machine was completely wrecked, the body being splintered to matchwood and even the engine damaged to such an extent that it is almost valueless. How the two men escaped serious injury or death is attributed for they were still in the seats when the machine rolled over the last time, some twenty feet from the roadside. Moore received a badly wrenched shoulder and Winslow minor bruises, but it was not necessary to call a physician.

COUNCIL CONSIDERS ROUTINE BUSINESS

Health Officers Report Indicates High Order of City's Sanitary Condition.

Business of a routine nature was brought before the meeting of the city council yesterday afternoon. Reports of the health officer and municipal court were accepted and placed on file.

The council then announced the appointment of F. C. Grant to succeed himself as member of the Fire and Police commission for a term beginning May 1st and ending in 1915.

1915. Councilman Cummings moved that the report of Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, city health officer be accepted and placed on file. Motion carried.

The report shows that up to the present date there are only three cards up in Janesville for contagious disease, they being for typhoid fever, scarlet fever and measles. No cases of small pox resulted from the exposure of the two strappers who were discharged from the detention hospital late in March, and the general health of the city was ascertained to be in a gratifying condition.

Preparations for the two day's clean-up and the campaign of educating the public was given by the council, and the work of the Commercial club, Civic league and press were given praise. The success and benefits of "swat the fly" movement was also noted.

Reports were made to the state industrial commission on the sanitary conditions of the bakeries and confectionary stores, which were said to be in a satisfactory condition.

During the month, seven rooms were fumigated where there had been contagious disease or suspected cases. Twenty cases of tubercular cases were on file by Dr. Buckmaster. In April there were fifteen marriages and ten accidents, and thirteen deaths.

The report of the municipal court was also accepted and placed on file. The fees for the month of April amounting to $112.00, marshal fees, $6.20 and court fees, $14.91.

The council also voted the transfer of the liquor license issued to Mrs. Anna McNeil to the Myers Hotel company and bonds were accepted.

Superintendent of street cleaning, G. H. Smith, was instructed to repair with gravel Ravine street, from Madison to Washington and from Chatham to Pine streets.

The ordinance for lowering the circus license in the city from one hundred and fifty dollars to one hundred was given its first and second reading. The meeting was adjourned until Tuesday of the coming week.

INVITATIONS ISSUED FOR PROF. HATCH'S ANNUAL DANCE

On Tuesday, May fifth, the third annual dancing party given by George Hatch will be held at Assembly Hall. Invitations have been issued, and those not reached who held invitations to former dances are most cordially invited. The Hatch orchestra of ten pieces will furnish the music, which will consist of all the late popular airs and new songs. Many will be attracted by the fact that the affair promises to be most unique and entertaining.

OPIUM HABIT GROWS IN FRENCH SOCIETY

PARIS. POLICE DEPARTMENT ADOPT STRINGENT MEANS OF CHECKING DRUG HABIT.

FASHIONABLE HOMES

Police Raids Show Numerous Dens in Homes of Society Leaders—Supply From London.

Paris, May 2.—Owing to alarming ravages made by the opium habit in all circles of French society of late, the police have been issued by the police prefects of Paris, Moulins, Marseilles and other cities to keep a sharp look out for the traffic in all its phases and make arrests relentlessly whenever culprits may be found. The feeling of no regard, regardless of their position, are to be spared.

Mme. Lasalle, formerly the Viscountess de Rains, has just been fined $120 in the correctional court here for the possession of the drug. She lives in a magnificent house in one of the richest and most exclusive quarters of Paris, with several millionaire Americans for neighbors. Her home is near the Porte Dauphine, the fashionable as well as principal entrance to the Bois de Boulogne.

Raid Many Dens.

The former viscountess's house was raided by policemen in uniform. In the hall the police commissary found many small sets of keys, which he carried to the door of a room. Her drawing room was a model of its kind, being gorgeously furnished with priceless Chinese bric-a-brac, draperies and lanterns. A soft rosy light shined up the room, and in the picture of prominence, was a divan, six by twelve feet long, upon which several persons could lie and smoke together.

London Supply.

Mme. Lasalle denied that she ever smoked a cent from her guests. She did not need to. She liked to smoke herself and those of her friends who came to see her and they smoked opium together. She said she obtained her opium in London. Following the finding of Mme. Lasalle, twelve Paris druggists were found guilty of selling cocaine and sentenced to pay fines ranging from $10 to $400 and to various terms of imprisonment, some of the students in the Latin quarter who supply cocaine or use opium in some form or other, are alarmingly numerous, while many naval officers and men, especially those who have served in the Orient, are regular patrons of joints in Marseilles, Brest and Toulon. The latter port being France's principal naval base.

As profits are large the trade in morphine, ether, cocaine and other narcotics is carried on in a big way, especially in Paris, some dealers actually distributing the supplies to customers by automobile. The drugs ultimately are delivered to users in various guises, sometimes hidden in bouquets of violets or other flowers, often by women and girls posing as flower girls.

Powerful Effect.

Montmartre is another great drug-using center, many actresses and demimondaines of that quarter being addicted to the habit. Recently an ape, the property of a Montmartre woman who died of drug-using, was found to be a confirmed cocaine fiend. The French government is making the most serious attempt yet to stop or at least reduce to a minimum, the dope habit. While it is admitted that it is practically impossible to stop all illicit traffic in drugs, the aim of the authorities is to make all access to the poisons so risky that new victims will not appear. So, as soon as the hopeless drunkards disappear, France at least will be practically free from the vice.

NEW ZEALAND PROTESTS AGAINST FAKE LABELING OF BRITISH GOODS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Dunedin, N. Z., May 2.—New Zealand has begun a vigorous campaign against the practice of certain English exporters of sending foreign goods to this country under English labels. The charge is made that British merchants buy large quantities of cheap foreign goods and ship them to New Zealand and other colonies as British manufactures.

Minister of Customs Fisher in a recent speech said that he had positive proof that foreign goods were imported into England and repacked and shipped as British merchandise to evade the extra duty that New Zealand places on all foreign manufactures. New Zealand wished to purchase British goods, according to the minister, rather than foreign merchandise, and he pledged himself to do everything in his power to prevent the unscrupulous British merchant from cheating the colonial public.

It is said that this form of contraband trade is especially rife among exporters of textile goods. Many of the shipments which arrive ostensibly from Lancashire never saw the inside of the mills there, but have been so skillfully repacked and repacked that the fraud might never be detected unless they should fall into the hands of experts, who know the English weave.

BRITISH BARMAIDS TOO OLD AT THIRTY VERDICT OF PROBE

Twenty-two Thousand Girls Employed in English Saloons Degraded by Dissolute Atmosphere.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, May 2.—"Too old at thirty" is the unhappy lot of the British barmaid described in a report by Mrs. Bernard Drake of an inquiry made by the Women's Industrial Council.

Barmaids are a British institution. Very few men are found behind the bars in the saloons throughout the United Kingdom, except proprietors. There are 22,000 barmaids in England alone. Frequent cruades have been started with the purpose of eliminating women, and particularly girls, from this vocation, but nothing has been accomplished. One reason is that the saloon is the working man's club, and he prefers those places where he can gossip with the girls. On the whole the influence of barmaids is to raise the atmosphere of saloons, but the influence of the saloons upon the women is considered bad.

Too Old at Thirty.

"The barmaid soon grows old," says the report. "Sometimes she is old at 25. She is generally too old at 30." Her chances of marriage are small unless she marries the barman or the manager, and almost the only course left to her is the streets. The number of women on the London streets have once been barmaids is out of all proportion to the total numbers in the trade.

Mrs. Drake writes sympathetically of the women behind the bars. She says:

"The barmaid is cheaper than the barman. She is more industrious, more sober, more amenable to the wishes of her employer, less rebellious against the hard conditions of public house life."

"There are women, women of high character, who earn in the bar a decent and respectable living, and are not unhappy. There is even a woman of robust health and temperament, who finds in the public house a certain vocation. The bar is to other women immediate ruin."

"But all these are exceptions. The barmaid who is of the majority, although she loses nothing of self-respect, continues at her post only in weariness and lethargy, and with a great fear in her heart of that which the future is to bring."

Wages Abnormally Low.

Wages for barmaids are no more than domestic servants command in the United States, and the average working day is fourteen hours. In houses patronized by workmen the average pay is $2.50 to $3 a week; in hotels it may rise to $3.50, and for a head barmaid to $4.50 or even $5. Board and lodging are always furnished but the girls are expected to dress well.

The barmaid, according to Mrs. Drake, belongs to the type of normal change working girl, who is industrious, sober and honest, although she is to be distinguished from her sisters by a greater measure of the love of youth for adventure. She seldom regrets the career as the result of a false step. The workingman seldom loses his respect for the barmaid as a woman worker; it is reserved for the man about town to be without all sense of honor or chivalry to women.

Changes and party girls are deliberately chosen for the worst kind of saloons which are the resorts of dissolute men and fallen women, because the inexperienced girls attract the men. They are given no protection by their employers.

Young Girls Exploited.

Two great evils of the present saloon system are pointed out by the report. One is the long hours affecting the health of both men and women and leading to excessive drinking. The other is the exploitation of young girls which is responsible for their degradation. One reform proposed is that no girl under the age of 21 shall be employed after 8 o'clock, except on the premises of her parent, and the other is that the bar shall be a more fit place for men and women.

RUSSIAN ESPIONAGE IN SWEDEN CAUSES MUCH ANXIETY AMONG PEOPLE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Stockholm, May 2.—That Russia is carrying on a well-organized campaign of espionage in Sweden is borne out by the frequent arrests of persons suspected of spying. Among those recently imprisoned is a young Swedish student named Malmberg. He is accused of a selling valuable information to Russian agents, in complicity with a non-commissioned officer of the Swedish army, and a government clerk, who were lately convicted and sentenced to five years' hard labor.

TREACHEROUS SLIDES THREATEN BIG DITCH

BEAKS SHOW GREAT DANGER OF TREMENDOUS LANDSLIDES DURING RAINY WEATHER.

USE RECORD DREDGES

Dredging and Hydraulic Work Continues at Culebra Cut—Engineers Confident of Success.

Panama, May 2.—Rock and dirt are still moving down the Cucaracha Slide into the Culebra Cut, but the engineers who have been fighting the treacherous slides in this vicinity are at last gaining upon nature. Fears that the opening of the canal, set for January, 1915, would have to be postponed indefinitely, have been growing less each day, for the dredges and steam shovels have been taking out the dirt and rock much faster than it slid into the canal.

The Cucaracha Slide, just to the south of the Cucaracha trouble, is entirely at rest and it is hoped it will remain so, but the canal engineers will watch this treacherous hillside with some anxiety as the rainy season approaches. Breaks already are showing far back from the canal prism, which might indicate a movement of crushed rock and dirt into the canal for the tireless dredges and steam shovels to remove. The coming season will be likely to loosen anything ready to slide.

Dredging and hydraulic operations in the cut continue day and night. Back of Gold Hill the hydraulic pumps are washing away vast quantities of loose soil, greatly relieving the pressure which has forced so much of the dirt into the canal prism. At the toe of the slide the dredges have been busily engaged in removing the dirt out of the channel itself, while far up the slide other hydraulic operations are tearing at the very heart of the hill.

Huge Dredges Used.

Within a short time the two new large dredges will be engaged. These are the largest yet built of this type. One already has been received on the isthmus and is almost ready for operation. At the same time the dredge "Corozal" will begin deepening the channel, which now averages about 26 feet, to the required 45 feet.

This deepening of the channel, the engineers believe, will be a tedious operation, for the weight of the hill-sides at Gold, Culebra and Contract on hills is constantly forcing the bottom of the canal upward. It is anticipated that this will continue until the weight on the hill-sides has been sufficiently lessened.

According to figures just compiled there have been 1,000 cubic yards of dirt and rock removed from the canal prism between Gamboa and Pedro Miguel, which includes the entire Culebra Cut area, a total of 27,000,000 cubic yards of dirt with a probable 6,000,000 cubic yards remaining to be excavated.

Avert Labor Trouble.

The recent announcement of Col. George W. Goethals, governor of Panama Canal Zone, that there would be no immediate reduction of the wage scale, averted what threatened to become a serious labor difficulty. The unions represented on the isthmus met and formed the Metal Trades Union and the Panama Canal Union, and obtained strike sanction from their parent bodies to be prepared for any emergency that might arise. No further action, however, is contemplated by the unions, it is generally believed.

Beautify Grounds.

Work has begun on landscape gardening in the vicinity of Gatun Locks and Dam. The top of the dam is being graded for tropical plants. The work is being done by H. H. Reed, supervisor of the Fourth Division. It is planned to beautify the grounds surrounding all the locks just as fast as the construction work has been completed.

The navigable reaches of the canal will be allowed to grow up in their natural tropical verdure, confined within certain limits. Already in many places the canal looks more like a natural water-course than one constructed by the hands of men.

At Cristobal it is proposed to build a tropical park along the land ends of the wharves of the Panama railway.

Sell Old Machinery.

Discarded canal machinery is being sold to several private corporations in South and Central America. Venezuela has had a commission on the isthmus which purchased considerable dredging machinery with which to deepen several harbors. Much of the large dredges that dug their way through Culebra Cut have been sent to Porto Rico, where they are soon to be engaged in harbor work. Many of the locomotives that hauled the rail cars out of the cut have been

Offer City Hall Battery To Help Fight Mexicans

War officials at Washington will receive, within a few days' time a telegram from the Janesville officials, which unquestionably will tend to cast a new light on the administration policy over the Mexican situation. The diplomatic and important message will be the offer of a perfectly good field cannon, that up until Friday, decorated the front terrace of the city hall.

Heretofore this piece of formidable artillery served to protect the city hall from invaders and to convince the public in general that the Janesville police were ready for any kind of an attack and criminals who have chanced to stray from the rightous path were always placed, when being put through the third degree, so that they could obtain a good view of the city hall battery. It is said to have a powerful effect upon them.

Outside of having these qualities, the cannon served as an excellent ornament and it was rather a sad moment when the order came yesterday to "can" the cannon.

Yesterday the erstwhile war piece was unanimously started to the rear of the city hall, by two prominent city officials to spend the rest of its day in seclusion, unless ordered to Mexico with Co. G. K., the local fighting brigade. No salute was fired or even a flag raised when the staunch veteran was given an honorary discharge from noble service of guarding the city hall. For seven long years the Janesville arsenal rested in peace and the cannon, once gazing threateningly over Jackson street, overawing pedestrians with its muzzle and instilling a fear of war into their timid hearts. Countless juvenile citizens viewed the cannon with fond dreams of being soldiers and often wondered just how much noise the enlarged musket would make for a Fourth of July celebration.

The cannon has a history. Most everyone has. Despite a common municipal belief, it was not the hero over any bloody battlefield, did not escape with the rest of the Yanks at Bull Run, or help to halt the charge of General Pickett at Gettysburg, or was used by Sherman in the march to the sea. The truth is that the biggest war that the cannon ever experienced was to escape a natural death in the city dump pile.

Policeman Patrick Fanning and Robert Bear saved the "veteran" from this last resting place and like Good Samaritans, took pity on the gun and gave it a place of honor and reverence for seven years. The impressive war piece was planned and constructed by Frank Pierson, locksmith, for Fourth of July celebration. Pierson bored the cavity of iron, mounted it on trucks, and elaborated on its general construction until no one but a seasoned war veteran could tell but what it had honorable service through the Civil War.

After serving its duty on the memorable Fourth by having its first and only experience as a noise producer, it was decreed to oblivion in the Gas Pond dump. Hence its history as the battery of the city hall.

Superstition Concerning Friday.

There are some curious contradictions in the superstitions about the ill luck of Friday. As all the world knows, it is considered bad luck to begin any enterprise, to marry or start on a journey on Friday. On the other hand, Friday is the best day of the week to pare one's nails. One who laughs on Friday will weep on Sunday.

To Remove Paper.

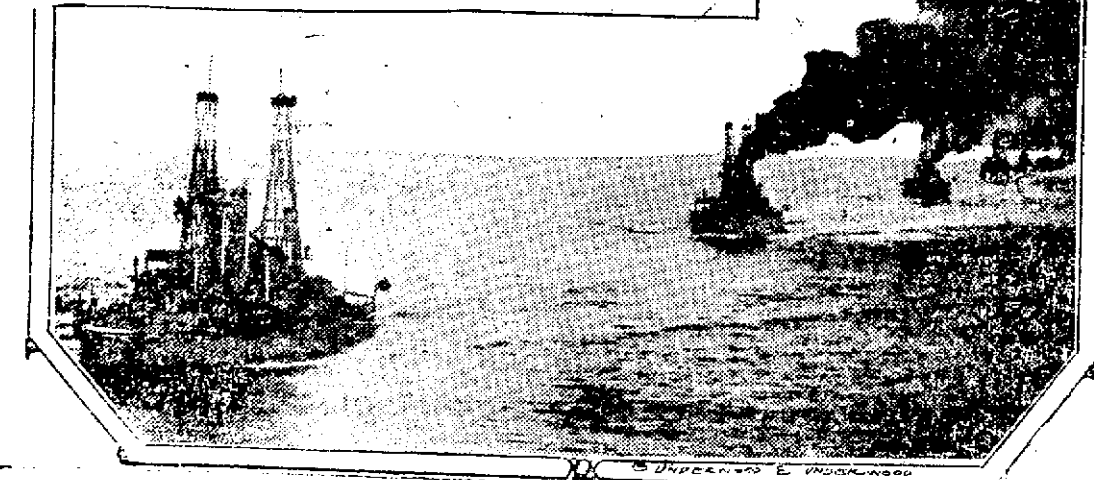

An excellent way to remove paper from the wall when about to repaper a room, says Modern Priscilla, is to make a rather thin paste of flour and water and go over the paper with a large brush or cloth, wetting every part. After allowing this to stand for a little while the paper may be taken off in great strips without spreading a particle of dirt or dust.

New Kind of Ashes.

Little Laura—"Mamma, what kind of ashes is satin ashes?" Mamma—"I never heard of them, dear." Little Laura—"Well, in my Sunday school lesson it says: 'And the King of Nineveh covered himself with sackcloth and sat in ashes.'"

HERE'S HOW INCOMING FLEET LOOKED TO FOLKS AT TAMPICO

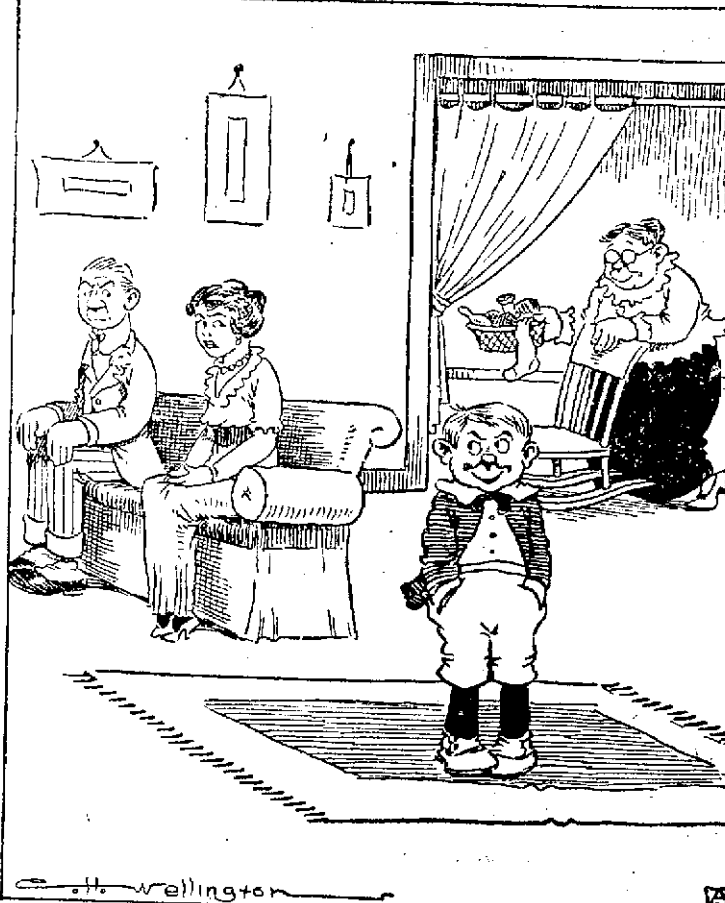

This picture of the North Atlantic squadron gives some idea of how the incoming war fleet looked to the people of Tampico. This fleet is the most powerful that ever was seen in Mexican waters. Among the battle-ships that have just reached Tampico are the Arkansas, Vermont, New Jersey, Michigan and New Hampshire. These vessels were accompanied south by nearly a dozen tugs, gunboats, cruisers, etc.

COPYING.

A PROGRESSIVE business man had instituted an excellent system of arranging and labelling the various department in his store. One of the assistants in a neighboring store pointed out advantages of the new system to his employer that they adopt it. The employer was horrified. Copy his rival? Certainly not, that would never do. So he retained the old-fashioned, inadequate method rather than employ the new, efficient plan.

Do you think he was right? I don't. To my mind it is a great mistake to be afraid of copying a good thing. It is best to be able to recognize good ideas. It is next best to be able to recognize good ideas and adopt and adapt them for your own use.

Incidentally I think there is altogether too much stress laid on originality. There are many people who think if a thing is new and different it is therefore better than the old. But newness in itself does not necessarily constitute an advantage. To be superior, the new way must have some other recommendation. Nor on the other hand does newness constitute a disadvantage as many people seem to think. The highest type of mind examines both the new and the old and is nearly without prejudice as is possible, and then has the courage to adopt the old or the unbroken trail, whichever seems to it best.

Do not be afraid to copy anything which your judgment tells you is an improvement. There is nothing really new under the sun, they say, and the chances are that he from whom you copy, copied in his turn from someone else.

Of course I do not mean all this advice wholly for business men. Not by any means.

At least not for business men in the accepted sense. Life is a business. We are all business men or women, and manage each our own life efficiently or inefficiently, as the case may be. And those who run it efficiently are those who always have their eyes and minds wide open ready to see and adopt anything worth copying.

You, Mrs. Married Woman, find housework hard. It seems to come easy to your neighbor. Why? Study her, find out, and copy her methods as far as you can.

If you want to change, study some of the popular girls whom you know, and in so far as you approve them copy some of the qualities by which they seem to attract.

You, Mr. Man, are conscious of not having a good presence. You are diffident and awkward, when you should be cordial and at ease. Pick out some man who has an unusually winning presence and copy some of his ways.

Doctor Johnson says, "No man ever became great by imitation." Doubtless that is true about people who slavishly imitate some one person. But let a man originate where he can, and where he cannot let him copy the best from many models, like the bee calling its drop of honey from each flower, and he will be as great as it lies in him to be.

never think of, in later-days, without shame and without despising the boy who took advantage of her ignorant foolishness.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl thirteen years old.

(1)—Will lemon juice take off freckles without injuring the skin? If lemon juice takes off the freckles, will it be easy for them to come back on?

(2)—How much does a good rice powder cost?

(3)—My mother thinks that no girl of my age should have boy friends, as she thinks this will cultivate a longing for beaux. Do you think she is wise?

(4)—What does asking for a "date" mean? What should I say if a boy asks for a date?

(5)—Lemon juice will not always take off freckles. The skin must come off if the freckles are to come off. Pure lemon juice is apt to make the skin raw. In that case it should be diluted with water. Use cold cream also, on the skin, when using lemon juice. Freckles will always return if you are not careful to keep out of the sun. Wear broad-brimmed hats and carry a sunshade. A green veil is good to fight freckles.

(6)—From 50 cents up.

(7)—Some girls have a longing for beaux whether they know any boys or not. If a girl has the right home training and if she is modest and self-respecting she will not be boy crazy, but will know how to be just good friends with the boys she knows.

(8)—It is a rather vulgar way of asking you to set a certain time when you can give your company to the person who asks it, for some amusement, usually. If a boy asks for a date, ask him what he wishes, then tell him that of course you must consult your mother before giving him an answer.

Wisdom of Quiet.

More than half a century of existence has taught me that most of the wrong and folly which darken earth is due to those who cannot possess their souls in quiet; that most of the good which saves mankind from destruction comes of life that is led in thoughtful stillness. Every day the world grows noisier; I, for one, will have no part in that increasing clamor and, were it only by my silence, I confer a boon on all.—From the Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft, by George Gissing.

Women Worth While

Mrs. Carolyn B. Shelton.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)

After excellence, the governor, is a title which so far few women have had the honor to wear. Just such a title and such an honor fell to the lot of an Oregon woman who now makes her home in Washington. Mrs. Carolyn B. Shelton.

While still in her teens Mrs. Shelton became secretary to the Hon. George Earle Chamberlain, then a lawyer in Portland. She continued as his secretary while he twice filled the office of district attorney, and also during the years that he was twice governor of his state. Since the election of Senator Chamberlain to congress, Mrs. Shelton has been his confidential clerk, thus rounding out a service of eighteen years.

It was when Governor Chamberlain was elected to the United States senate that he set out for Washington and left Mrs. Shelton to fill his place at home. Thus she became acting governor of Oregon for at least five days, during which time she assumed the duties that fall to the lot of every governor. No pardons were issued by her during Governor Chamberlain's absence. In Washington, but requests and extradition matters came up before her and all routine work was for several days passed upon by Mrs. Shelton in her capacity as acting governor of the state.

During inauguration week the Oregon visitors to Washington all seemed to feel that a visit to Washington would be incomplete unless they called to pay their respects to "Governor Shelton," as they affectionately call Mrs. Shelton.

Mrs. Shelton herself was born in Oregon. Her family "way back" was of old English stock, who emigrated to America and settled in Pennsylvania. In the early sixties Mrs. Shelton's father, the Rev. Mr. Skiff, decided to seek his fortune in what was then the almost unknown territory of the far northwest. No railroads at that time stretched across the continent, so he went by vessel all the way around Cape Horn till he reached the distant land of Oregon.

Mrs. Shelton's mother was a Pennsylvania who had gone with her own father out to California when he went as a forty-niner. By ox cart she made the trip from California to her husband in Oregon.

SUFFRAGETTES HOLD PARADE IN CHICAGO

Woman on Long "Hike" to St. Paul for Suffrage Demonstration.

Chicago, May 2.—Several thousand suffragettes were to march in Michigan avenue late today in the first big suffrage parade ever held in Chicago. Each of the marchers was to wear a white "suffrage bonnet" with the word "Suffrage" fluttering on streamers, white shirtwaists, and dark skirts. Invitations were sent to several male political organizations, but suffragettes do not expect to see many male marchers in the parade.

The start of the parade, originally set for shortly after noon, was postponed to give working girls a chance to participate. Governor Dunne and several legislators who actively supported the women's suffrage bill in Illinois, will review the parade from a stand near the art institute. Chief of Police Gleason promised ample police protection.

Hike to St. Paul. St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—All roads leading into St. Paul were dotted with little knots of women, all wearing yellow hats, who were hiking here to take part in the suffrage demonstration which began in the auditorium at 9 o'clock. Some of the women had been walking since yesterday morning and arrived at the mass meeting at the auditorium, foot-sore, but enthusiastic.

Following the meeting at the auditorium, the suffragettes adjourned to Rice Park, where scores of prominent suffragettes from all sections of the country addressed them. They left this afternoon to take part in a parade at Minneapolis.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Rub the potatoes with olive oil before baking so that the skins will be thin and soft and will not cling to the inside of the potato when it is done.

Stoneware and earthenware absorb fats and retain their odors so that all fats should be kept in tin or glass, which do not absorb them.

When making a berry pie from canned berries stir a tablespoonful of jelly into the berries before putting them into the pie. It enriches the flavor.

Housekeepers who get butter by the jar or tub will find that the use of a little charcoal will insure having the butter sweet. The charcoal is placed in a paper bag and then put into the jar.

THE TABLE.

Boiled Salmon-Trout—Select a small fish, have in your kettle enough salted boiling water to cover the fish, and add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar to the water. Boil the fish in a piece of firm cheesecloth and lay in the kettle. After it begins to boil allow twelve minutes to the pound. When done take it out of the water carefully remove the cloth and transfer the fish to a hot platter. Sprinkle with pepper and salt and pour over it a well-seasoned white sauce. Garnish the dish with slices of lemon and sprigs of parsley.

Scalloped Cabbage—Fill a head of cabbage in two waters; drain; let it cool and chop fine. Cover the bottom of a baking dish with the bread crumbs; scatter over these tiny morsels of butter, seasoned with pepper, salt and a few drops of onion juice; spread with a layer an inch thick of the minced cabbage. Season this layer with salt, butter bits and a dash of lemon juice. Repeat the crumbs, then a second layer of cabbage, a cupful of boiling milk and cover all thickly with bread dust well seasoned. Stir the grated cheese upon the top and bake, covered. Uncover and brown.

Orange Pie—Rub to a creamy paste a half cupful of butter and a cupful of granulated sugar. Beat light the yolks of four eggs, whip them into the butter and the sugar, add the juice and a quarter of the grated peel of a large orange, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and the stiffened whites of two eggs. Line a pie plate with light puff paste and turn the orange mixture into this. Bake until the filling is set and the crust lightly browned. Beat the whites of two eggs light with two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. When the pie is done draw to the door of the oven, spread it with this meringue and return to the oven and broil the top.

Macaroni Pudding—Break a half pound of spaghetti into bits of uniform length and cook in a double boiler until tender. Have heated a pint and a half of rich milk and thicken this slightly with a half teaspoonful of cornstarch rubbed into a teaspoonful of butter. When the milk is of the consistency of cream, drain the macaroni and stir into it this white sauce. Put into a double boiler and heat for five minutes. Turn into a deep dish, sprinkle lightly with powdered cinnamon and serve with butter and cream.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I hear quite a number of opinions from the different high school pupils about articles written by you in answer to their queries. Some ask foolish questions, "just for fun," but you usually get a good bit of laugh at these foolish questions.

Others use your paper to get some personal spite carried through, as I believe I recognize in one of the queries in last night's issue.

Others, of course, are in earnest and always receive the best advice, I for discourtesy or insult of any sort. Real kindness will help a girl to get through the silly stage so that she can respect herself and not encourage her to be even more silly and perhaps do things that she can now.

Your answers are read and appreciated by a great number of people.

It seems to me that some of the high schools boys need a rousing lecture regarding their treatment of our girls. Never have I seen so many overgrown, well-groomed boys as at present in our high school, but it seems some of them have grown too fast, physically, to have grasped the fine points mentally.

I have been interested in your department and appreciate how difficult a proposition you fill and to me it seems such an answer fits whether to the learned or unlearned.

MOTHER OF A HIGH SCHOOL GIRL.

I am publishing this letter partly because it expresses so beautifully some of the facts concerning some of my correspondents, but chiefly because I wish the words concerning our high school boys would sink in. Every one should respect womanhood, whether it is still undeveloped in a girl of the "silly age" or in a woman who has won respect through a noble life. Some will say that it is the girl's own fault if they are not treated respectfully by the boys they know. I admit that many girls are foolish, indiscreet, never thinking of what their actions now will mean to them in their future. But any boy who will never use that as an excuse him will never use that as an excuse

Want Ad Efficiency

A woman in a nearby town started a private dancing class. She was desirous of forming a class of children as well as adults. To do this of course she must let the people know about it—that is if she wanted pupils.

She was a wise little woman; she wanted pupils. If she put her time in on this class, she wanted the right kind of results.

She ran a card in her home paper, left it in; ran it until she had proved to her pocketbook and her sarcastic neighbors that she could make dancing classes pay.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt. — "We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me." — Mrs. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

C. J. Lester, 1017 Wheeler St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I hadn't been feeling well for several months. My whole system seemed to be filled with uric poison. My whole body ached at times and it seemed to be swollen. I was dull and languid and had but little strength or energy. My kidneys didn't do their work right and I decided to try a kidney tonic. I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of and I got a box. I felt so much better after I used them that I continued until I was well. THE PLACE OF HONEY-MOONS

HAROLD MAC GRATH

Pictures by C.D. RHODES

The carriage stopped before a handsome apartment house in the Avenue de Wagram. The unknown got out, gave the driver his fare, and rang the concierge's bell. The sleepy guardian opened the door, touched his gold-braided cap in recognition, and led the way to the small electric lift. The young woman entered and familiarly pushed the button. The apartment in which she lived was on the second floor; and there was luxury everywhere, but luxury subdued and charmed by taste.

She threw aside her hat and wraps with that manner of inconsequence which distinguishes the artistic temperament from the thrifty one, and passed on into the cozy dining room. The maid had arranged some sandwiches and a bottle of light wine. She ate and drank, while intermittent smiles played across her merry face. Having satisfied her hunger, she opened her purse and extracted the banknote. She smoothed it out and laughed aloud.

"Oh, if only he had taken me for a ride in the taxicab!" She bubbled again with merriment.

Suddenly she sprang up, as if inspired, and dashed into another room, a study. She came back with pen and ink, and with a celerity that came of long practice, drew five straight lines across the faint violet face of the banknote. Within these lines she made little dots at the top and bottom of stubby perpendicular strokes, and strange interlinear hieroglyphics, and sweeping curves, all of which would have puzzled an Egyptologist if he were unused to the ways of musicians. Carefully she dried the composition, and then put the note away. Some day she would confound him by returning it.

A little later her fingers were moving softly over the piano keys; melodies in minor, sad and haunting and elusive, melodies that had never been put on paper and would always be her own; in them she might leap from comedy to tragedy, from laughter to tears, and only she would know. The midnight adventure was forgotten, and the hero of it, too. With her eyes closed and her lithe body swaying gently, she let the old weary pain in her heart take hold again.

CHAPTER III.

The Beautiful Tigress.

Flora Desimone had been born in a Calabrian peasant's hut, and she had rolled in the dust outside, yelling vigorously at all times. Specialists declare that the reason for all great singers coming from lowly origin is found in this early development of the throat. Parents of means employ nurses or sedatives to suppress or at least to smother these infantile protests against being thrust inconsiderately into the turmoil of human beings. Flora yelled or slept, as the case might be; her parents were equally indifferent. They were too busily concerned with the getting of bread and wine. Moreover, Flora was one among many. The gods are always playing with the Calabrian peninsula, heaving it up here or throwing it down there; it terremoto, the earthquake, the terror. Here nature tinkers vicariously with souls; and she seldom has time to complete her work. Constant communion with death makes for callousity of feeling; and the Calabrians and the Sicilians are, the cruellest among the civilized peoples. Flora was ruthless.

She lived amazingly well in the premier of an apartment-house in the Champs-Élysées. In England and America she had amassed a fortune. Given the warm beauty of the southern Italian, the passion, the temperance, the love of mischief, the natural cruelty, the inordinate craving for attention and flattery, she enlivened the nations with her affairs. And she never put a single beat of her heart into any of them. That is why her voice is still splendid and her beauty unchanging. She did not dissipate; calculation always barred her inclination; rather, she loitered about the Forbidden Tree and played that she had plucked the Apple. She had an example to follow; Eve had none.

Men scattered fortunes at her feet as foolish Greeks scattered floral offerings at the feet of their marble gods—without provoking the sense of reciprocity or generosity or mercy. She had worked; she had been crushed, beaten, cursed, starved. That she had risen to the heights in spite of these bruising verbs in no manner enlarged her pity, but dulled and vitiated the little there was of it. Her mental attitude toward humanity was childish; as when the parent strikes, the child blindly strikes back. She was determined to play, to enjoy life, to give back blow for blow, nor caring where she struck. She was going to press the juice from every grape. A thousand odd years gone, she would have led the cry in Rome—"Bread and the circus!" or "To the House!" She would have disturbed Nero's complacency, and he would have played an obligato instead of a solo at the burning. And she was malice incarnate. They came from all climes—her lovers—with roubles and lire and francs and shillings and dollars; and those who finally escaped her enchantment did so involuntarily, for lack of further funds. They called her villas Circe's isles. She hated but two things in the world; the man she could have loved and the woman she could not surpass. Some one was at the speaking-tube. The singer crossed the room impatiently. "What is it?" she asked in French.

The voice below answered with a query in English. "Is this the Signorina Desimone?"

"Yes. And how that my identity is established, who are you and what do you want at this time of night?"

"I am Edward Courtlandt."

"Well, what is it you wish?" amiably.

"You once did me an ill turn," came up the tube. "I desire that you make some reparation."

"Sainted Mother! But it has taken you a long time to find out that I have injured you," she mocked.

"Will you give me her address, please? Your messenger gave me your address, inferring that you wished to see me."

"There was no impeaching her astonishment."

"Yes, madame."

"My dear Mr. Courtlandt, you are the last man in all the wide world I wish to see. And I do not quite like the way you are making your request."

"Do you not think, madame, that you owe me something?"

"No. What I owe I pay. Think, Mr. Courtlandt; think well."

"I do not understand," impatiently.

"Ebbene, I owe you nothing. Once I heard you say—I do not like to see you with the Calabrian; she is—well, you know. I stood behind you at another time when you said that I was a fool."

"Madame, I do not forget that, that is pure invention. You are mistaken."

"No. You were. I am no fool." A light laugh drifted down the tube.

"Madame, I begin to see."

"Ah!"

"You believe what you wish to believe."

"I think not."

"I never even noticed you," carelessly.

"It is easy to forget," cried the diva, furiously. "It is easy for you to forget, but not for me."

"Madame, I do not forget that you entered my room that night."

"I shall give you her address," interrupted the diva, hastily. The play had gone far enough, much as she would have liked to continue it. This was going deeper than she cared to go. She gave the address and added: "Tonight she sings at the Austrian ambassador's. I give you this information gladly because I know that it will be of no use to you."

"Then I shall dispense with the formality of thanking you. I add that I wish you two-fold the misery you have carelessly and gratuitously cost me. Good night!" Click! went the little covering of the tube.

With the same inward bitterness that attends the mental processes of a performing tiger on being sent back to its cage, Courtlandt returned to his taxicab. He wanted to roar and lash and devour something. Instead, he could only twist the ends of his mustache savagely. It did not seem possible that any woman could be so full of malice. He simply could not understand. It was essentially the Italian spirit; doubtless, till she heard his voice, she had forgotten all about the episode that had founded his ship of happiness.

Her statement as to the primal cause was purely inventive. There was not a grain of truth in it. He could not possibly have been so rude. He had been too indifferent. Too indifferent! The repetition of the phrase made him sit straighter. Pshaw! It could not be that. He possessed a little vanity; if he had not, his history would not have been worthy a scrawl. But he denied the possession vehemently, as men are wont to do.

Too indifferent! Was it possible that he had roused her enmity simply because he had made it evident that her charms did not interest him? Beyond lifting his hat to her, perhaps exchanging a comment on the weather, his courtesies had not been extended. Courtlandt was peculiar in some respects. A woman attracted him, or she did not. In the one case he was affable, winning, pleasant, full of those agreeable little surprises that in turn attract a woman. In the other case, he passed on, for his impressions were instant and did not require the usual skirting.

Oh, stubborn Dutchman that he had been! Blind fool! He had run away instead of fighting to the last ditch for his happiness! The Desimone woman was right. It had taken him a long time to come to the conclusion that she done him an ill turn. His jaw set, and the pressure of his lips broke the sweep of his mustache, converting it into bristling tufts, warlike and resolute.

What of the pretty woman in the Tavernier Royale? What about her? At whose bidding had she followed him? One or the other of them had not told the truth, and he was inclined to believe that the prevarication had its source in the pomegranate lips of the Calabrian. To give the old barb one more twist, to learn if its venomous point still held and hurt; nothing would have afforded the diva more delight.

When the taxicab joined the long line of carriages and automobiles opposite the Austrian ambassador's, Courtlandt awoke to the dismal and disquieting fact that he had formulated no plan of action. He had done no more than to give the driver his directions; and now that he had arrived, he had the choice of two alternatives. He could wait to see her come out or return at once to his hotel, which, as subsequent events affirmed, would have been the more sensible course. He would have been confronted with small difficulty in gaining admission to the house. He knew enough of these general receptions; the announcing of his name would have conveyed nothing to the host, who knew perhaps a third of his guests, and many of these but slightly. But such an adventure was distasteful to Courtlandt. He could not everstep certain recognized boundaries of convention, and to enter a man's house unasked was colossal impudence. Beyond this, he realized that he could have accomplished nothing; the advantage would have been hers. Nor could he meet her as she came out, for again the odds would have been largely in her favor. No, the encounter must be when they two were alone. She must be surprised. She must have no time to use her ready wit. An idea presented itself. It appealed to him at that moment as quite clever and feasible.

The minister came to Jethro's home one afternoon to a christening party. He was to christen Jethro's little son, Jethro Jr. "Jethro," said the minister solemnly, taking his host aside before the ceremony, "Jethro, are you prepared for this solemn event?" "Oh, yes, indeed, doctor," Jethro beamed. "I've got two tams, three gallons ice cream, pickles, cake

"No, no, Jethro," said the minister with a smile. "No, no, my friend, I mean spiritually prepared. Well, I guess yes! Two demijohns of whiskey and three cases of beer!" Jethro cried in triumph.

"Be observant, my son," said Willie's father. "Cultivate the habit of seeing and you will be a successful man."

"Yes," added his uncle. "Don't go through the world blindly. Learn to use your eyes."

"Little boys who are observing

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted)

On Monday next, May the 4th, all the big shows of the country will be on the road and making the one-night stands. In show business you are not supposed to really be out for the season until you have left the large cities and got to making the one-night stands. Tonight, May the 2nd, closes the five days engagement of the great Ringling Show in St. Louis, and from there they make a long Sunday run to Terre Haute, Indiana, which will be their first one day stand of the season. The Barnum Show is making one-night stands in New York state and tonight, May the 2nd, closes a two weeks engagement of the Miller Bros. 101 Ranch at the Madison Square Garden.

The Sells-Floto and Buffalo Bills show are in California making one-night stands. The Hagenbeck and Wallace Show is in Indiana, and today, Saturday, May the 2nd, marks the opening of the Collier Bros. Show in their home town in Baraboo, Wisconsin, and this will be a relief to every one connected with the big shows as they would each rather be making the one-day stands on the road than be stationed in a large city for several weeks, and now as we are expecting the Ringling Show in Janesville, about the middle of July, I am going to rail the road for that day. Perhaps you don't understand what rail the road means.

In wagon show business years ago in long overland trips in a strange country, it was my business to go ahead and mark the road for the balance of the show to follow. And to do this I would take twenty or thirty shingles in my carriage and when I would come to four corners, if the route was straight ahead, I would drop a shingle at each side of the road, which meant for everybody to keep on straight ahead to at least the next four corners, and if a turn had to be made there I would drop a shingle straight ahead one to the left or right, of the four corners as the case might be, and yet I think nine times out of ten the big teams following me, if the horses had their own way they would make the turn themselves, for as a rule they seemed to know which way my team had gone. Now if you are going to put in the day with the circus get up and watch the big stakes which hold up the wagons lowered to the street with the ease of the lightest carriage, then follow the big stakes, watch them drive tents, all of which is done by machinery. See the great Hotel under canvas, where they serve about fifteen hundred meals three times a day to their guests. All of these are interesting to watch, and 'twas a wonder to me how they could build up a great city of tents, give two performances each day, take these down, move possibly one hundred miles, build up again and go through this routine of business every day for the year, it is certainly a sight worth seeing.

The Main office of the Ringling Bros. show is located on the North side in Chicago, and is presided over the year round by David E. Barkh, who has been in the employ of the Ringlings for 17 or 18 years. It is the only office maintained by the two great shows during the summer and it is here that all the office business is done.

Away back in the seventies a young man by the name of Louis Hart, came to Janesville and for some time worked in a shoe factory on South Main street, which was located at that time where the Lewis Knitting mills are now. Hart was an expert in handling machinery for both shoes and harnesses. At that time he and Charles and Millie Ricker, of this city, became warm friends, and until this last winter, Louis Hart would often visit the Ricker boys at their home. Only last Fall he was here and spent a week as their guest. After leaving the Shoe factory here Hart went to New York and as he was a fast walker, and a man of great endurance, a trainer in that line of work put Hart in shape to start in the six days walking contest in Madison Square Garden, in New York City. A man by the name of O'Leary won the contest and received several thousand dollars as his share of the purse, this made him famous all over the country, and from that time on he was known as "Heat" and the Hart. Hart was a Frenchman by birth, and last summer his father died at his home in Spencer, Mass., at the age of 102 years, Louis Hart and a maiden sister were the only heirs. He left Janesville for his old home where he went at the solicitation of his sister to settle up the estate which was said to be about sixty thousand dollars. Shortly after arriving at his old home, Louis was taken sick and a few weeks later died. Mr. Hart was 60 years of age and always had a warm spot in his heart, for Janesville, and friends that he made when he called Janesville his home.

Many Janesville and Beloit people will be grieved to learn of the death of Colonel D. H. Harris, which occurred at his home at Mendon, Mich., a short time ago. Colonel Harris was the husband and manager of Marquette High school horses which appeared at the Fair in Beloit last Fall.

Col. D. H. Harris, manager and husband of Madam Marquette, the equestrienne, passed away at his home in Mendon, Mich., Monday, April 6, aged 64 years, 5 months and 29 days. Mr. Harris had been in poor health for the past two or three years. Several weeks ago he was taken from his home in Mendon to the hospital at Kalamazoo, Mich., but after one week there, he was found to be failing rapidly, and he was taken to his home. Death is said to have been due to a complication of heart, lung and bronchial disorders.

Col. Harris was born in Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 7, 1849. After growing into manhood he became a master horseman, and for years was connected with the leading showmen of the world, such as Barnum, Forepaugh, Ringling, etc., in the purchase of their horses. In May, 1882, he began his work with Madam Marquette, assuming the management of her business, and in October, 1895, they were united in marriage. Their travels have covered America and Europe.

The funeral services were held at the home Wednesday afternoon, April 8, and the interment was made at the Mendon Cemetery. From Liverpool, England comes the report that Louis E. Cooke arrived here today on board the Mauritania. He will at once take up his duties as General Manager of the Miller Bros. and Arlington 101 Ranch Wild West production, at the Shepherd's Bush Stadium of the Anglo-American Exposition, which opens in May.

Mr. Cooke is in full and complete control of the English interests of the 101 Ranch, and will have the assistance of Johnnie Baker as arctic director. The organization will be assembled in America by Miller Bros. and Arlington and will sail intact in May. The English Exposition will carry the authorized backing and sanction of Miller Bros. and Edward Arlington, and will be billed as 101 Ranch Wild West.

The return to activities of Mr. Cooke will be a subject of much gratification to his legion of friends in the circus business, who feared that when the Two Bills Shows were dissolved last summer, it would mean his permanent retirement from the field in which he has been engaged for many years. Mr. Cooke goes to England fully equipped for the duties that will devolve upon him, as he was abroad with the Barnum & Bailey Circus several years ago and served in the executive capacity for that organization in planning and executing the greatly successful tour.

A TWO-FAMILY FLAT HOUSE—By John Henry Newson

"Home of Character" No. 127

This attractive two-family house has the appearance of a single dwelling. The grouping of windows in bay and gables and the attention devoted to details of trim, porch columns, etc., are the distinguishing features.

The first and second floors are practically the same, except that living room on first floor has a well-lighted bay, which adds considerable to its size, while the second floor living room has a large alcove which is equally attractive. The dining room and kitchen are light, roomy and well appointed. Bedrooms and bath are secluded from the living portions of the house, and have large closets. There are separate heating plants for each floor in the basement. Attic and basement space is provided for each family.

A house of this type makes a desirable investment, as it can be built on a narrow lot and will bring in nearly twice the income of a single house.

A sleeping porch could be added at the rear for both flats at slight expense.

Cost $3800 as built, 25x42 feet. Can be built for $3500 to $4500.

Any Gazette reader who desires further information concerning No. 127 should address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette." There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.
